

have made use of, and quoted before. Ridger thinks himself justified in soliciting from Baltimore county (to attend at Annapolis) the tenor of a hand bill, replete with his signature of a Citizen; informing the subscriber further assistance, to oppose the killing of their lives; especially when the person, whose superior station ought to be an obstacle to such a concession—there is no single instance given, where the conductors merited so base a charge, as being individuals. The Elk-Ridger on being disclaimed such dastardly and groundless, nor has the Citizen given any conclusion boasted preparation to repel force by force, has ever been offered him from the Elk-Ridger, that a fence was up, to obstruct any attempts made by the subscriber in America was ultimately at Baltimore and every other county is immediately affected.

Ridger is allowed to draw an inference of man, he is justifiable in concluding persons under the initials in the letter as would sacrifice the liberties of America to its monument; and still is of opinion, that who discovers principles to injure it, ought to be held up as an example, to his conduct.

FIVE POUNDS REWARD.
R AN away from the subscriber, living in Chester-town, Kent county, in the province of Maryland, on the 27th day of January last, an indentured servant man, named John Daime, by trade a sawyer and rough carpenter; he is about 5 feet 3 inches high, and wears short light hair, is of fair complexion, round shouldered, and stoops when he walks, he speaks something in the west of England dialect. He had on, and took with him, an old claret coloured surtout coat, a home-spun close-bodied light brown ditto, which is much too large for him, a short flannel quilted waistcoat, two osnabrig shirts, a pair of good buckskin breeches, with a pair of plain yellow knee buckles, two pair of yarn stockings, the one pair white, the other brown, and pretty good shoes and laces; he can write a pretty good hand, and it is probable he will forge a discharge from Capt. Samuel Nicholson, (to whom he indentured himself) upon the counter part of his indentures. Whoever secures him in any jail so that he may be had again, shall receive the above reward, and if brought home, reasonable charges will be paid.

J. NICHOLSON, jun.

Chester town, February 19, 1775.

FIVE POUNDS REWARD.

R AN away from the subscriber, living in Charles-town, on the second of this instant, a likely well-made young negro man, named Wall, he is about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high had on, when he went away, a white kersey jacket, black and white striped kersey breeches, new osnabrig shirt, small round hat bound with black; he is remarkable for a large tongue, and limp when he speaks; he is now on the Western shore, and it is thought he is proceeding downwards, he has been in the service of some person in Annapolis. Whoever takes, and secures said negro in any of his majesty's jails, shall receive three pounds, or five pounds reward if brought to his master.

EDWARD WORRELL.

N. B. The negro was lately the property of Mr. Hughell, on the Western shore.
